Triterra Announces Changes to Management Team

LANSING, MI – December 9, 2013: Triterra, a Lansing-based Environmental Consulting Firm, recently made several changes to its management team.

- Don McNabb, a co-founder of Triterra, recently replaced Alan Hooper as the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) & President of the firm.
- J.P. Buckingham was promoted to Vice President of Due Diligence & Brownfield Services.
- Alan Hooper, a co-founder of Triterra, recently resigned from Triterra to focus on his personal real estate ventures and sold his shares of the firm to Don McNabb.

Mr. McNabb is responsible for overseeing implementation of the company’s strategic direction while continually promoting the core values and focus of Triterra. Under his leadership, Triterra will continue to utilize a creative, practical, responsive, and effective approach to address environmental challenges, while striving to exceed client expectations. Over the past five years, Mr. McNabb had served as Triterra’s Chief Operating Officer (COO), where he managed company operations, financials, quality assurance/quality control protocol, staff training, and various environmental projects.

Mr. Buckingham brings more than 13 years of experience in the environmental consulting field, with a primary focus on working with property owners, banks, developers, construction companies, real estate agents, and communities deal with the challenges associated with acquiring and developing real estate. In his role with Triterra, Mr. Buckingham is responsible for overseeing the firm’s due diligence and brownfield services, assisting various clients with property acquisitions and developments, training and mentoring staff, and developing new clients throughout the Great Lakes Region.

Mr. Hooper served as the company’s CEO since its creation in 2008 and worked with Mr. McNabb to establish Triterra as a sustainable, well-respected, environmental consulting firm. This transition will allow Mr. Hooper the ability to focus entirely on real estate development projects. Mr. Hooper will continue to utilize Triterra’s services when environmental needs arise on his development projects.

Triterra is a professional environmental consulting firm that specializes in brownfield development, environmental consulting, and natural resource management services. Triterra is dedicated to improving the quality of life within the community by offering a full range of consulting services to effectively and efficiently meet client's needs.
